A Child's Savings May Shorten The War

The war is costing the combined allies more than $30,000,000 an hour. The daily fate of this huge sum is simple waste. A shortening of the war by days or even hours would mean the redemption of colossal waste.

We must bend every financial effort towards shortening the war. Every small amount invested by a child in Thrift Stamps tends towards this end. The influence of every Thrift Stamp purchased is a little momentum toward earlier victory.

Thus a child's savings may be instrumental in definitely shortening this war and in saving many times its own value in money, to say nothing of conserving human life.

Encourage your child to invest in 4% interest-bearing Thrift Stamps instead of merely hoarding his pennies in a tin bank.

Thrift Stamps cost 25 cents each and may be bought at the postoffice.

CHILD RIDES ON RUNNING BOARD OF TRUCK—FALLS OFF AND REAR WHEEL OF TRUCK PASSES OVER HER, KILLING HER INSTANTLY

Theresa Lombardi, the 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lombardi of 1664 West Colorado boulevard, met a tragic death last Saturday afternoon at the corner of San Fernando and Colorado boulevards. Little Theresa, with a small boy playmate, jumped on the running board of an auto truck belonging to a Japanese fruit and vegetable peddler, and as the truck turned the corner at Colorado and San Fernando boulevards the little girl lost her balance and fell to the pavement underneath the truck, the rear wheel passing over her. She was picked up by Arthur Campbell, who hurried her to the Mission Rest Home, but life was extinct, and death was probably instantaneous.

The truck belonged to Saka Guchi, who sells vegetables and fruit in Glendale, and Carl Springer of 512 North Brand boulevard is employed by Mr. Guchi on the truck.

SMILEAGE BOOK DRIVE IN GLENDALE IS A SUCCESS

J. N. McGillis, chairman of the local Smileage Book Committee, reports that all the workers in this campaign are pushing the sales of the Smileage Books and that the quota for this district of 600 books is already assured, and that they will probably double their quota before the close of the campaign. Mr. McGillis says that the response to the appeal for clean entertainments for the boys in the camps is coming in large numbers, and that churches, clubs, organizations and individuals are only too glad to send this little bit of good cheer to the boys who are away from home. Last Monday purchase sixty books, one for each member of the lodge in the service of the country, an dindividual members of the lodge purchased thirty-seven books, making a tota lof ninety-seven for the Elks. At the Palace Grand theatre tonight Oliver O. Clark will make an appeal for the Smileage Book cause, and his few minutes' talk will probably be the means for a large number of more sales.

"Shoot Down the Red Cross Flag"

—Kaiser's Orders.

"The wounded who lay in No Man's Land were left to perish. The French tried to rescue them under the Red Cross flag but we only sneered at them and shot it to bits. The Red Cross flag had lost all its value for us when it was raised by the French. Mistrust was nurtured among us. We were told that the enemy misused the flag and that we must shoot down the men who bore it."

HERMAN ALLEN JENNINGS PASSES AWAY

Herman Allen Jennings of 417 West Tropico avenue passed away Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock, at the Burbank Hospital, following an operation. Although Mr. Jennings had been ailing from a cancer of the stomach for the last two months, he was confined to his bed only about two weeks. He was taken to the Burbank Hospital Sunday, April 28, where he underwent an operation the following Thursday morning in the hope of prolonging his life.

Herman Allen Jennings was born in the state of New York fifty-two years ago the twenty-seventh day of March. He came to California in the year 1901, and after a short stay in Los Angeles and Glendale he moved to Tropico, and has lived here ever since. During all the time of his residence here he has conducted a general blacksmithing business, and when a few years ago his shop on San Fernando boulevard burned up he established a blacksmith and garage business at 417 West Tropico avenue, which he conducted up to the time of his illness. He is mourned by a widow, a son, Denzel Jennings, a married daughter, Mrs. John Bowman, and two young children, Clark and Rose Jennings, and by a brother Charles Jennings, all of Tropico.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon in the Little Church of the Flowers and were in charge of Scovern, Letton & Frey. Interment in Forest Lawn Memorial Park.

PICNIC FOR NEW YORKERS

Here is an open invitation for all the people of Southern California who ever lived in the State of New York to attend a jolly all-day picnic reunion in Sycamore Grove Park, Los Angeles, Saturday, May 18, 1918.

There will be county headquarters where you can meet friends, basket dinners at noon, coffee provided, and a program opening about 2 o'clock wit hsongs and patriotic addresses. Each one who reads this notice is asked to pass it on to all the New York folks possible. Take a day off and have a regular family reunion and good time, for this is the main object of our picnic. Honor the old home state with a patriotic remembrance rally.

Tourists and visitors will be warmly welcomed.

The Tropico Red Cross branch had its usual busy day this week, with work enough for all. A quilting bee was an unusual feature, while in other places the workers were busy with hospital garments and leather lined vests for aviators, and in the other room were the surgical dressing workers. The branch takes especial pride in the quality of its work and is accumulating a fin estock in its store room.

TROPICO BUYS $46,900 LIBERTY BONDS

It is very gratifying to note that Tropico not only went over the top in the Third Liberty Loan, but it came back and went over again, and came very near going over another time. The quota for Tropico was $16,900, and according to the report of the Third Liberty Loan Committee for this district the bond sales amounted to $46,-900. And there is a star in the honor flag which Tropico received.

CALIFORNIA NOT CALLED UPON TO FURNISH MEN IN MAY DRAFT

In connection with the announcement that California will not be called upon to furnish any men for the May draft, it is interesting to know that since the first of January the local exemption board has inducted fifty registrants who have volunteered without waiting to be called. Some of the men have secured releases to go into the navy.

The total number of men who have enlisted in the army from this district is 175, and 45 have enlisted in the navy.

The total number of registrants inducted by this board who have been accepted is 135. This takes no account of 37 men sent on recent draft calls on which reports have not been received as to whether they are accepted or rejected at the camps to which they went.

Efficiency means trading nearest to home.

TODAY IS "HEART DAY" IN TROPICO AND GLENDALE

The Children's Home Society of California opened a "Heart Day" campaign in Tropico and Glendale this morning. The following women are in charge of the campaign: Mrs. E. D. Yard, chairman; Mrs. W. W. Ramsey, Dr. Jessie A. Russell, Mrs. E. V. Bacon, Mrs. Wesley W. Bullis, Mrs. Charles H. Toll, Mrs. Warren Roberts, Mrs. Arthur Brown, Mrs. L. W. Bosserman and Mrs. Charles Peckham.

The headquarters will be at the Chamber of Commerce rooms on West Broadway, near Maryland avenue, where members of the committee will give out the little hearts and banks to the young people who work. Dollars, half dollars, quarters and dimes given in exchange for little red hearts will help the society to find homes for the destitute in this city, county and state.

Boys and girls are received for adoption from infancy up to 14 years of age, regardless of color, creed or nationality, and once placed in a home, their welfare is watched during all the years of their minority by the society. More than 4000 children in California have received this care.

Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Sharp, of 151 West Eulalia St., Tropico, have as their guest, Mrs. Sharp's mother, Mrs. Clara C. Chapin, of Illinois. On Monday, they entertained Miss Anna A. Gordon, president of the National W. C. T. U., who was on her way to the State W. C. T. U. Convention which met May 7—11, in Bakersfield.

ORCHESTRA SHINES

The Red Cross Benefit Moving Picture show held last Friday night proved to be a huge success. Eighty one silver dollars were turned into the treasury—these silver dollars melted together will be a silver mallet to nail the Kaiser to his own Iron Cross. Every one that went was glad he had done so for it was a fine picture. Our orchestra made a big hit with the Glendale public by several musical features. Mrs. Gibson and the members of the orchestra deserve much praise for their splendid work which is bringing fame to Glendale High.—Explosion, High School.

WAR GARDEN PRIMER

Those interested in war gardening in the United States, and it would seem, from the inquiries addressed to daily and weekly newspapers concerning seeds, planting, and so forth, that their number is legion, do not appear to be very generally informed that a simple request of the National War Garden Commission, Maryland Building, Washington, D. C., will bring a war garden primer, containing the very hints they are seeking, free of charge. This is one of the most useful commissions ever organized in the country, and its services are practically at the disposal of every one desirous of increasing in a small, large, or medium way, the nation's foodstuff supply.—Exchange.

WAR FOR HUMANITY

War, in a good cause, is not the greatest evil which a nation can suffer. War is an ugly thing, but the ugliest of things; the decayed and degraded state of moral and patriotic feeling which thinks nothing worth a war is worse. When a people are used as mere human instruments for firing cannon or thrusting bayonet, in the service for the selfish purposes of a master, such war degrades a people. A war to protect other human beings against tyrannical injustice; a war to give victory to their own ideas of right and good, and which is their own war, carried on for an honest purpose by their free choice, is often the means of their regeneration. A man who has nothing which he is willing to fight for, nothing which he cares about more than he does about his personal safety, is a miserable creature, who has no chance of being free, unless made and kept so by the exertions of better men then himself. As long as justice and injustice have not terminated their ever-renewing fight for ascendency in the affairs of mankind, human beings must be willing, when need is, to do battle for the one against the other.—John Stuart Mill.

This was written a half century and more ago, but it might have been writen yesterday, it applies so well to today's conditions. The truth is the same yesterday, today, and tomorrow.

AMERICA'S FOOD POLICY SAVED THE ALLIES, SAYS LORD RHONDA

Even the most ardent admirers of the United States—and I count myself to be among them—must be astounded at what the American people have accomplished in their first year in the war. When America came in we all realized that her potential resources of men, money and material were unequalled either by friend or foe, but we also knew that these resources were unorganized, her men untrained and her shipping facilities undeveloped. In one year the United States has done most of the things we have not done yet.

As Food Controller of the United Kingdom (Great Britain) I can say without hesitation that had it not been for the establishment by President Wilson and Congress of a Food Administration and for the superb generalship of Mr. Hoover as Food Administrator the outlook for the Allies would be very black indeed. Neither American nor allied troops can fight on empty stomachs, and the civilian populations in their rear cannot provide them with money, munitions or moral support unless they have a maximum of essential food wherewith to maintain output and efficiency. The wonderful organization on behalf of the Allies and of America's own military effort of the food resources of the United States, although only legalized eight months ago, has so far enabled us to defy the menace of famine.

But if we are to fight through to the finish no compulsory restrictions of rationing which I have imposed or may impose, and no sacrifice which our people here may make will be of avail unless the American people keep up a full head of steam and continue to provide to the utmost of their patriotism and their capacity these food supplies upon which victory depends.

(Signed) RHONDA.

EPIGRHYMES:

Perhaps it's sorta sacrilege fer me to talk this way, but I am old, an' it won't hurt to let me have my say about these words—"I LOVE THEE"—or, I mean that one word, "Love;" it ain't jest right to make it cheap; it rhymes with "turtle-dove;" it's used at times ridiculous, at times it's used sublime; I feel AS though this awful year's THE GOOD an' proper time fer one ol' fool philosopher to analyze that word, an' study "LOVE" from all the things he's felt, or read or heard. 'Way back afore the Civil war I loved a gal—she's where her memory's idealized in thought, in word, in prayer! Now that has always seemed to me a feeling set apart—'twas tender, gentle, awful—'twan't jest love—'twas my whole heart! An 'then there is the "Love of HEAVEN;" I wants to see Her there, but that same "Love" don't fit both things! Enough! We sure don't care what noun we use, we know jest this: Today, in every man there burns a loyal spirit that spells out—"American!" And I'm jest sure that what we feel for this, Our Own Home Land, great souls like Her's and Longfellow's, now, fully understand!

Robert Russell.

SEEKING HAPPINESS FUTILE

Experience Not Gained by Pursuit, but Comes to One Who Does Kind Deed Without Thinking of It.

Those who seek happiness never find it—a truism that has been going the rounds since philosophers began getting their words into print or upon graven tablets, observes the Dayton News. But it is well to repeat it occasionally, to keep it ever before the masses of humanity, that it may become so much a part of our creed and faith that the youngest among us and the oldest may realize the full meaning of the expression.

There is no greater unhappiness than that of pursuing happiness, for happiness is never overtaken by those who pursue it. Happiness comes to him who is not thinking of it; to him who is doing something for others, with never a thought of his own happiness. No man has ever yet followed a course of conduct with his own happiness in view and achieved his purpose.

Service to others—that is all there is to life that savors of happiness. The service need not be great; it is given to few persons to be of great service. And those who are of great service do not realize it—they do not start out with that in view.

To be kind and courteous and considerate of the comfort of others—that is the service which brings happiness. The man who helps a crippled old woman upon the street car is happier for doing so. The fellow who stops to wipe away the tear from the eyes of a child who bruised its hand; the woman who visits a sick neighbor to see if she can be of any use; the man who puts another in position to help himself—these little services are quite great in the realm of things that go to make for happiness. And they are possible with all of us.

PUT "WIN THE WAR" SPIRIT INTO BUSINESS LETTERS IS SECRETARY REDFIELD'S PLEA

"See that a win-the-war spirit gets into your business letters" is the slogan of a movement launched by the Department of Commerce to remind business men that the everyday business letter is a most effictive instrument for creating confidence in the Government's war policies and for inspiring others with the determination to see the war through at any cost.

"The idea was first brought forward in connection with American business letters to foreign countries," said Secretary Redfield. "The volume of our foreign business mail is very large. It reaches firms in all but the enemy countries. For the most part it is read by those who are for us, but you may be sure that it reaches many who doubt our success and many who are at heart against us. I am sure that every foreign business man who opens an American letter is quick to detect even the slightest indication of the writer's feelings on the conduct of the war and its outcome.

"It is of the utmost importance therefore that the American business letter breathe confidence in every line. If the manufacturer or exporter feels that he has a just grievance against restrictions imposed on his trade, by all means let him go right to headquarters and register an emphatic complaint as he feels is justified. But he certainly should not carry the matter into his business letters. It is sure to create an entirely erroneous impression in some minds.

STOCKTON BUILDING OPERATIONS

In the face of comparatively high building costs the Stockton Chamber of Commerce has launched a campaign to encourage the construction of dwellings of all descriptions. There are practically no housese for rent in Stockton, and the Chamber of Commerce is convinced that the development of the community is being retarded as a result. All the data it has gathered, without exception, bears out the emphatically expressed belief of those who have studied the situation that the high level of building material prices will be maintained for several years at least after the war is ended

Hoover Outlines Work of Food Administration and What It Has Done for America and the Allies

By Herbert Hoover

(From an Address.)

We of America are voluntarily saving food to send abroad to help win the war. Those of us, who, like myself, have lived behind the German lines, find our hearts haunted by the scenes of long lines of emaciated women and children who today and for three years have gathered in Belgium for their daily bread from America. That pittance—their all—represents scarcely the wastes from American tables. This winter these lines have, for the first time during the war, gathered in the poorer sections of England, France and Italy. Not only should this pull at our hearts, but beyond this it is a menace to our very safety. In the presence of a common enemy we sit at a common table with all people defenders. Is the daily call of the Food Administration for less waste, for simpler living, to eat only for strength, not a call to conscience? Is it not a vital call of defense?

Voluntary conservation of food has a moral side of importance. By it we are appealing directly for the self-sacrifice of the people of the United States to the carrying on of the war. I do not believe that there is another nation in the world in which the proportion of individuals with a willing sense of self-sacrifice is so high as in this people of ours, and in which a sufficient voluntary reduction could be obtained. This basis of reduction gave some trepidation to the Allies, for fear of its failure, but I am happy to say that we shall have performed our national duty, the Allies will have been fed during this harvest year, so far as the obligation falls upon us, almost wholly upon a voluntary footing. Far beyond this, it is justifying us in our belief in the high idealism and willingness to sacrifice in the American people.

We have had some criticism from individuals who believe that they should not be called upon to do more than their neighbors willingly do. In response to this, my feeling is that our Army does not fail to go over the top because there may be two or three slackers hiding in the trenches.

Aside from the prime necessity of protecting our independence and our institutions, there is but one possible benefit from the war, and that is the stimulation of self-sacrifice in the people, the lifting of its ideals and the division of its peace tendencies because of the purely material things in life, to a strengthening of its higher purposes. I do not say that such compensations are full compensation for war, but they are at least an amelioration of the terrible currents that are threatening our existence. Therefore, we felt that if there could be brought home to the sense of every American household the necessity of this personal and individual sacrifice, we would have spread the opportunity for service beyond those who sacrifice in giving their sons to immolation on the national altar.

To accomplish this requires education, requires an intimate understanding by each man and woman in the United States of the objectives of the government and the duty that falls upon them. We have called upon the millions of women and men in the United States with an unfailing reply. We have created great numbers of committees who have worked with the utmost devotion. We have entered our 20,000,000 households periodically with literature and we have plastered the country with posters and urging. We have secured the fine co-operation of the manufacturers and distributers of food. But we could not have attained this had we not had the absolute devotion and team work of every newspaper in the United States. Our every appeal has, through this gigantic influence, received an immediate and prompt distribution. Without this incessant, voluntary, liberal support, our plan would have been impossible.

No person in the United States has a right to make one cent more profit out of any employment than he would have made under pre-war conditions. I do not care whether this refers to the farmer, to the laborer, to the manufacturer, to the middleman or to the retailer. Every cent taken beyond this standard is money abstracted from the blood and sacrifice of the American people.

Extortionate profits are not necessary to secure the maximum effort on the part of the American people in this war. If we are going to adopt that theory, we have admitted everything that has been charged against us of being the most materialistic, the most avaricious, and the most venal of people in this world.

If we are going to admit that the government, in order to secure the supreme effort of its citizens in production, must bribe them with money to this extra exertion, we have admitted a weakness of American character, of American civilization and of American ideals that puts us on a plane below German Kultur.

Do not mistake that I am saying that prices and wages should return to the pre-war normal, because the incidence of war before we joined in it had lifted our costs of operation, and there must be compensation in every direction. Nevertheless, I hold that any man who has made more than his necessary living out of the cost this nation is giving in the blood of the boys we are sending to France, should not stand out as a benefactor to his community.

I have had this statement met before now with the expression that it is dreamy idealism, but I have found no individual who was prepared in his own instance to defend any such line of action.

I am confident that profiteering has from a national point of view disappeared in the larger food trades, and in consequence my belief is that it should be applied generally to all business in the community, and it is also my belief that before we are finished with this war, that will have been done.

To me, this goes much further than the mere case of the individual and the blame that may be attached to him. As I have seen this war develop, and from an active participation in its backwash and misery since its first day, I have seen growing out of the masses of people in every country aspirations for a great economic change. That change, broadly, as stated by extremists, will be that those who work with their hands will obtain a larger portion of this world's goods, and those who work with their brains will obtain less. Those who do not work will probably obtain nothing.

If we are to bring about this economic change in an orderly and American way, and not by convulsion during the period of recuperation from the war, we must lay the foundation for it now. None of us wants a repetition in the United States of the history of the last twelve months in Russia. The proper social development of this country along these lines fills the background of all men's minds and its proper guidance rests upon the liberal and thinking men of the country.

There is but one real test for us. Our game is to win the war, and the test is, Do we keep our eye on the ball? For, friends, this people will be cursed for the next ten generations if we don't. Nor does this test apply to Washington alone. We in the Government can often criticise also, and our right of criticism lies against that minority of people who hope for self-interest—financial, social or political—out of winning the war. This Government is nothing more than the expression of the people, and if we are to win the war, it will be only because every man, woman and child charges himself daily and hourly with the test, Does this or that contribute to win the war?

Nor is this the gospel of gloom, it is the gospel of the full health, spirits and strength of our people in maintaining the last ounce of production.

Save Wheat

Wheat saving is America's most vital food problem.

The United States Food Administration, in view of the critical wheat shortage, asks every Californian to observe the following amended rules:

Make every meal every day a "wheatless" meal. Eat no food of any kind containing wheat or wheat products unless absolutely necessary for health.

Substitute fresh and cured meats meats of all kinds, including pork, potatoes, fresh vegetables, fruits, dairy products and other cereals, such as corn and rice.

The "meatless" and "porkless" days have been suspended.

SEND YOUR FIELD GLASSES, SPY-GLASSES OR TELESCOPES TO WASHINGTON TO BE 'EYES' FOR THE FLEET

The Navy needs these "eyes" to derive the submarine of its sting and it has requested the California State Council of Defense to help it obtain them. Commissioning hundreds of new ships for naval service has created a demand for observation glasses far in excess of the present American output. The only way to insure an adequate supply while the manufacturers of lenses are speeding up production is by appealing to the patriotism of private owners.

The Government pays a nominal fee of $1,00 for each glass accepted and the donor is further rewarded by knowing that his patriotic contribution may be the means of saving thousands of troops in transport and also of saving much-needed shipping from destruction.

Old, scuffed telescopes or field glasses may possess first class lenses, so don't be chary about forwarding them regardless of appearance.

Ship direct by mail or express to Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Naval Observatory, Washington, D. C. Tie a tag with your name and address to each instrument.
